Put a damper on fires

Dry conditions spark MNR warning

GREG HOEKSTRA
Staff Reporter

A dry spell across Ontario has created an increased risk of forest fires, leaving fire officials in the Haliburton Highlands on high alert.

Dave Brown, fire management supervisor at Haliburton's Ministry of Natural Resources firebase, says warm temperatures and a lack of precipitation have created ideal conditions for forest fires in this sector of the province, which ranges from Parry Sound to Pembroke and south to the Tweed area.

Brown says the fire hazard ranges from high to extreme and, as a result, the MNR is advising that people keep campfires to a minimum.

"Until we get some rain forest fuels will be very susceptible to fires," says Brown. "For now we would ask that people don't burn unless they really have to."

For those who do burn, Brown says it's important that they keep fires as small as possible and take extra precautions when extinguishing them. Anglers should consider using Highlands East councillors said that they would meet periodically with their constituents in a public forum, and they have followed through.

About 50 people turned out at the Cardiff Community Centre on July 28 to let their civic leaders know what kind of job they are doing and what issues they have on their minds.

Consistent with meetings of this type, residents had a number of issues on their minds, from barking dogs, to the future of area libraries. By far, the greatest time went to the discussion of the sale of non CSA-approved generators by the Highlands East fire hall as a fundraiser.

Ward two representative Suzanne Partridge said that the present council was aware that the fire department was selling generators but as with other fundraising initiatives, they were uninvolved, and that the generators appeared to have the appropriate paperwork and CSA stickers.

Council has asked that the any residents who bought generators to stop using them until the safety approval markings on the devices can be verified. They held an open house at the Bicroft Fire Hall in Cardiff on a portable gas stove to cook shore lunches rather than a campfire and, as always, no fire should be left unattended.

So far this summer Brown says there has been relatively little cause for concern, in part because of wet and cool weather during the early summer months.

However, Brown says the longer this area goes without precipitation, the more potential there will be for larger and more devastating fires, since larger forest fuels will begin to dry out.

"The longer the dry spell we have, the deeper burning and more intense fires will become," he says.

In addition to the risk posed by campfires, Brown says the MNR is also closely watching weather trends, since lightning can also cause a dry forest floor to ignite under the right conditions.

"When a thunderstorm goes through you often get a lot of rain, but there are also a lot of lightning strikes along the edges of the storm," he says. "So even if there is 5 millimeters of rain, fires will often smolder away until that small amount of rain dries out."

Brown estimates the MNR has responded by air to half a dozen fires in Haliburton County this summer, including one on an island near Dorset last Thursday, started by an improperly extinguished campfire.

Father charged after accident

Haliburton OPP say the accident occurred on private property behind the Harcourt Community Centre. The area was initially posted with a no trespassing sign, but someone knocked down the 'No ATVs or Dirt Bikes' sign.

Both riders were wearing fill dirt bike protection, which likely limited the injuries.

One youth was charged with trespassing. The father of the youths is charged with permitting operation of an off road vehicle without a permit or insurance.

Trails and Tours wraps county in pretty package

The Haliburton Highlands Trails and Tours Network has hired Dave Bishop to let the rest of the world know that all trails lead to Haliburton County.

Bishop will coordinate the Haliburton Outdoor Experience Program (HOEP), an exciting partnership initiative between Trails and Tours and the County of Haliburton, and funded through the Haliburton County Development Corporation (Community Capacity Building Program).

The aim is to create a framework that will support tourism operators, guides and other organizations interested in developing and offering outdoor experiences in Haliburton County. This initiative addresses a gap in tourism services here, namely the development, packaging, promotion and delivery of unique Haliburton experiences.

Trails and Tours will become the base of operations and infrastructure for this dynamic initiative that will result in a framework for creating "experience packages" that can be used by this partnership and others in the community to further develop the experience travel potential for the Haliburton Highlands.

Bishop successfully developed and coordinated outdoor education and adventure tourism programming at the Haliburton Forest and Wildlife Reserve for the past 16 years and brings a wealth of experience and enthusiasm to this new role.

"This is a great initiative and I'm excited about the leadership role that Trails and Tours is taking to develop outdoor experiences in the Highlands," Bishop says. Having sat on the network's board of directors in the past also gives Bishop an advantage as he is familiar with the organization's mission and vision.

"We are so pleased to have Dave on board," says President Kate Hall. "We advertised for a highly motivated, self starter with a creative and entrepreneurial approach to sustainability in the not-for-profit sector and we definitely have the right person for the job."

One of the priorities within the outdoor experience initiative is the Hike Haliburton Festival, an outdoor experience now in its fifth year. With funding from the Ministry of Health Promotion's Trails for Life program, Trails and Tours aims to make this event the premier hiking festival in the province.

Administrative coordinator Sam Davies has been working with Up North Web Design to ensure that the new electronic registration system is in place so that participants can pre-register for hikes and other festival activities. Start up funds allowed Trails and Tours to develop the hiking festival over the past fours years. Now the event must stand on its own two feet and become revenue generating.

The fees collected from participants for hikes and activities will ultimately be used to sustain the festival into the future. Thanks to Davies, planning for the festival is well under way. A number of new hikes are being offered this year, hike leaders are on board and the festival program will be available in print and early in August.

"The festival is shaping up to be better than ever", says Davies. "All hikes have been generously sponsored by local businesses and they will benefit from having their advertising appear in the program".

Trails and Tours hopes to attract new participants to the festival by offering fun hikes for families, creating new partnerships with groups holding events on the same weekend and by expanding their promotion efforts to reach new tourism markets.

Trails and Tours is also fortunate to have Tegan Moratz, a recent graduate of Fleming's Eco and Adventure Tourism Management Program, on staff. Moratz will be working closely with Bishop to develop specific tourism products for sale by the organization. One product currently under development is the creation of self guided tour CDs and downloadable MP3 files. Trails and Tours aims to have at least one self guided tour ready to go this fall/winter.

Trails and Tours is confident that its new focus on the "tour" side of its mandate will assist the organization in developing revenue generating streams that will contribute to the long-term sustainability of the organization. For more information contact Trails and Tours at 489-4049, info@trailsandtours.com or visit www.trailsandtours.com.

Council struggles with possible library closures

July 28 offering expert analysis on the questionable CSA approval stickers.

Mackie says that council is primarily concerned with associated safety issues.

"These things could electrocute somebody; they could burn somebody's house down or they could gas somebody," Mackie said.

There have been no fires nor injuries as a result of use of the device.

Meanwhile the investigation continues into allegations that firefighters sold generators from personal garages, and to what degree council knew of the practice and who ultimately is responsible.

The fire department estimates that about 50 units were sold last summer, some to customers as far away as southern Ontario.

In other issues, council is contemplating initiating a group of representatives of each ward to bring common interests and issues to council. Said one man, "Since forced amalgamation this council is not thinking together, is not talking together and is not working together."

He proposed the initiation of a group comprising two members from each ward to gather the wants of everyone in Highlands East, not just the wants of Wilberforce, or Highland Grove, or the other communities.

Council circulated a sign up sheet with the goal of soliciting volunteers for the potential group.

A group of concerned citizens wondered what the future of the libraries will be in Highlands East. The county is considering closing some locations as a cost-saving measure, but locals want all branches to remain open. The argument comes down to whether it is more efficient to open fewer libraries for longer periods of time than opening more libraries for a handful of hours a week.

"I know the value of libraries on a community," said Mackie, who sits on county council. "This issue has been discussed for some time. Do I think it is fair that we may have to close libraries? No."

But he said that county council will have to seriously think about what they want to do. The county seems content to fund enough books for one library in each municipality, which means that Highlands East may have to find a way to ship books to various locations, which in the long run could cost even more money.

Said one women, Tthe demographic of this region indicates that we have a lot of seniors. Those seniors walk to libraries and they will not be able to do that if local branches close."

Reeve Dave Burton said that no decision has been reached yet, but his council will determine what it wants to do and then petition the county.

Wave bye-bye

Why don't boaters wave any more?

echo
editorial
martha perkins

IF YOU GREW UP spending weekends at the cottage, you were, no doubt, well trained in the rules of lake etiquette.

One of those rules, gladly enforced, was that boaters waved to one another. If you were in a boat, you waved to the people in passing boats. And they waved back. You also waved to the people whom you passed on shore. And they too waved back. Everyone waved.

Maybe it was a safety thing. A wave indicated that you saw the other boat and were therefore less inclined to run into it. Maybe you just felt so blessed to be enjoying such freedom that you wanted to share your good feelings.

Today, it seems, only a third of boaters wave. It's not that the other two-thirds don't see you; they just don't make eye contact long enough to acknowledge your presence with a smile let alone raising an arm. Everyone's looking the other way, focused on their own enjoyment on the lake.

What's happening? And why?

Maybe it stems from how stressful our lives away from the lake have become. There are just too many other people threatening to invade our space so we surround ourselves with a do-not-disturb bubble. Anxious to create some semblance of peace and quiet, we make ourselves believe that we're the only person on the sidewalk or spending an hour in stop-and-go traffic.

(Just so you know, people who live in small towns make eye contact all the time. Chances are that you know, or are at least familiar with, the person you're passing on the street. If you don't make eye contact you risk being very rude by not saying hello. This same courtesy extends to when you're in your vehicle. You raise the index finger of the hand resting on the top of the steering wheel and give a quick half-arch wave – not to be confused with the rude one-finger salute that urban drivers are more familiar with.)

If people are accustomed to zoning out all the other people they have to share their week life with, maybe it's become so much a part of their urban survival technique that they do it on a lake too. Maybe a weekend's not long enough to let their defences down. It's therefore not snobbiness or rudeness that leads people to not return a wave. That would indicate it's being done deliberately. Instead, not acknowledging other people has simply become a habit.

There's only one thing worse than not waving at a fellow boater – it's waving at another boater only to have them stare straight ahead and pretend you're not there. Pretty soon, even the wavers will stop waving. And bit by bit, something important will be lost.

We're not supposed to be invisible in the Highlands. We are supposed to be sharing something special with one another. That's part of what makes this place special. So wave, will ya. Please.

Memoirs of a real estate man

two-eight-six

WHEN I DECIDED to slip the surly bonds of the Big Smoke and embrace the soul-healing, lung-cleansing, eye-soothing surrounds of life in nature's domain, I thought, "I know, I'll move up to the cottage and become a writer/real estate salesman. What with the baby boomers heading quickly for retirement age, and everyone trying to escape the trials of life in the city, I'll bet no one has thought of that."

The fact that there is probably one real estate salesperson for every cottage in Haliburton County is not the point here. Neither is the fact that a real estate licence, once almost as easy as getting a driver's licence, is now about as easy as getting a law degree. Okay, some of us are better students than others. People with the math gene will definitely fare better than those of us with the typing gene.

Be that as it may, I managed to get through and become a salesperson. And while I thought my education was all behind me, it was, in fact, just beginning.

The real estate business in the wilderness is nothing like the biz in, say, Toronto. For example, there's seldom a problem finding an address in Toronto. Yonge Street is Yonge Street. Bloor is Bloor. Not the case here. Finding the place is almost the most important part of the business. Once located, it's an easy matter to sell it. Well, it's a good start, anyway. And this is the point.

After cottaging up here all my life, I came to realize that I really didn't know anything about the area. As a cottager, every weekend I joined the huge parade exiting Toronto, staying in line until arriving safely at the cottage. Once here, I plopped myself down beside the lake, and more or less stayed put until someone told me it was time to go back to the city. We had our boats and water skis and canoes and fishing rods; our bonfires and beer; our barbecues, our hammocks, air mattresses, rowboats and tubes; diving boards, docks and water-slides - really, who could ask for anything more?

Not us. We were so busy washing the city out of our hair that we missed a lot of what makes Haliburton even greater than we already knew. I didn't know there were three or four different ways to get to Bob Lake. I didn't know the history of the log chute up on the Kennisis River. I didn't know there was a great stretch of white water below the dam on Horseshoe Lake. I didn't know there were dozens of lakes throughout the area with nobody on them.

As a real estate salesperson, I have found those hidden gems. Sometimes. I have also been lost trying to find them - so lost that the cell phone is no help. One adventure had me walking out of the wilderness, along a lumber road, car stuck in sand, nobody around, bear and moose prints in the dirt, until rescued by a man and his wife who managed this patch of wilderness. They were the only people to travel this road, and they only did it once a week. I was lucky.

Of course, these days, there is much more to do in the area than in my day. Minden and Haliburton are alive with activities that encourage cottagers to get out and about. I mean, in my day, the closest thing to Rock the Wave was Rock Around The Clock. Just ask your parents.

Life in the bat cave

Tales from Vinegar Hill

steve galea

Two nights ago, I was minding my own business, seeking sanctuary in my office when I noticed a fleeting shadow moving back and forth across the wall in front of me. When I looked up, a bat was doing circles in the air space over my head.

Needless to say, I found this distracting. So distracting that I decided to enjoy some quiet time under my desk.

After all, bats, especially in confined spaces, make some people nervous, and understandably so. They fly in a quick and unpredictable manner, they're considerably bigger than mosquitoes and, if what I learned from watching Bugs Bunny is true, many are actually Transylvanian vampires who can be instantly changed into human form simply by uttering the words "hocus pocus."

"Carol!" I yelled from my new-found fetal position. "There's a bat in my office!"

Excited at the very prospect, my wife came running from the kitchen to my office doorway.

"Did you say bat?" she asked.

"Yes!" I yelled with a casual air of nonchalance as I pointed to it. "Can you provide assistance? My bone marrow seems to have cramped up!"

"Sure," she said cheerily. She then slammed and locked the door leading from my office to the main house, thus sealing my fate. Then, from the safe side of the door, she suggested that I should confront my fears.

In situations such as this, a man quickly learns what he's made of. I, for instance, am made predominantly of salty tears and infant-like whimpering noises.

Even so, my back was against the wall and my wife was laughing at me once again - a situation eerily reminiscent of our honeymoon night. So I did exactly what I did on that night: I reached for a nearby snowshoe, and began waving it frantically over my head while duck-walking in random directions.

The difference was, this time, I looked up and uttered words I should have said long ago. "I will not be made a fool of. You might have ruined a good pair of my underwear but you will not take away my dignity!"

You cannot imagine how liberating that was.

When I reached the door that led from my office to the outside world, I flung it open to the night, threw aside the snowshoe, and courageously hightailed it to my van.

Contrary to what my wife has been telling people, however, I was not motivated by abject terror. No, I just thought that perhaps my fearless and manly presence was scaring that poor bat. I figured that if I removed myself from the scene, for perhaps six months or so, the bat might calm down and leave on its own accord.

Besides, I think we can all agree that a cowardly man couldn't have found the inner strength to crack open the window and yell, "Boy, look at all the bugs out here! It's like bat heaven!"

It's interesting to note that the bat, which found a way into my office through some hidden crevice, was now having a hard time negotiating its way out a wide-open doorway.

After several minutes of watching this, I realized that Carol was right. It was time to face my fear.

So I went around the house, walked in the back door and confronted her.

"That was not nice!" I said. "You're a stupidhead!"

After that, dealing with the bat was easy.

I simply walked into my office and escorted it out the front door by pretending to scream like a little girl and jump out of the way each time it passed near. They hate that.

Soon after, Carol entered the room.

"I'm proud of you," she giggled. "You got rid of that bat all by yourself."

"It was nothing that John Wayne wouldn't have done," I suggested.

"Are you okay?" she asked. "This isn't going to have any lasting traumatic effect is it?"

"Heck no," I said as I duck walked away.

"You've got to admit it was funny," she said. "I especially liked the part where you clawed at the door."

"Yes," I said. "it was really funny."

Tomorrow, I find a snake...

The buildings near the centre of the photograph are believed to be the Ben Walling barn, water tank, and house. The early view of the Walling family's property pre-dates the establishment of Wallings Dairy, a long-time Haliburton institution.

Curb speeders

To the Editor:

A recent Echo article reported Dysart council's move to cut down wait time at traffic lights.

A more pressing requirement is to address the problem of speeding vehicles both entering and exiting Haliburton village on Highways 118 and 21. This is routinely done since our friends at the OPP cannot monitor traffic all the time.

Minden Hills has solved the problem in Ingoldsby by declaring the hamlet a Community Safety Zone which means speeding fines are doubled.

Until council does something decisive, there is one remedy open to responsible motorists. When driving within the village limits, simply maintain the posted speed limit of 50 kph. The result will be that at least some people will learn that we have our speed regulated here and the driver obeying the limit will find his or herself leading the parade of learner drivers.

Walk the line

To the Editor:

Quiet country roads – Not!!

Not really, most of our roadways are busy, especially in the summer, and have lots of turns and hills making it necessary for drivers to keep close to the right side of the travelled roadway. Since many of our roads have no shoulders or side walks those wishing to go for a walk or run are forced to do so on the travelled portion of the road. Many do so with their backs to oncoming traffic and in some cases plugged into various listening devices.

Perhaps those wishing to walk or run on the travelled portions of roads should take a refresher safety course from Elmer the Safety Elephant especially Rule number 6: where there is no pavement, walk on the left facing traffic.

Re: 'Lost on the 'net' - July 31, 2007

I was somewhat surprised to see front-page Echo headlines of July 31 that slammed not only the publicly available commercial services of Mapquest and Google Maps, but also 'any GPS-based mapping systems'.

I wondered if the USA military are likewise being criticized for inaccuracies in their Global Positioning System? Surely we must instead accept that like many products (an automobile, a cake, or a house), the mapping quality of Mapquest and Google Maps will be directly related to the ingredients that are made available to the builder.

In that regard, it is reassuring to learn from the article that Haliburton County is now prepared to share their GIS databases with the mapping services that are available to customers of our lucrative tourist businesses. No doubt this important step will encourage further tourism and visitors to our region.

But, individual businesses could easily increase their own marketability. Perhaps the Gage family, and any other Haliburton County tourist entity, should post the actual GPS co-ordinates of their own properties, directly in their own respective web sites, rather than slam those that try to prepare locational maps on their behalf.

Thus, any of the increasing number of GPS users, can also freely borrow the multi-billion dollar satellites to plan their very own route directly to the property, regardless of any recent change of road name or street number.

Move beyond griping at meetings

To the Editor:

Since amalgamation was accepted by all the former townships that make up Highlands East, it would be more productive that when the new council (which has been in for only seven months) has its town hall meetings this summer, taxpayers in all wards come with innovative ideas. Nothing will be accomplished if it is only a gripe session.

None of us likes change but change is the only way of moving forward and negativity gets us nowhere. Remember there are four wards in Highlands East and each one is as important as the other.

Curtain rises on exciting new opera studio

LAURA HENDRICK
Staff Reporter

Move over New York, Haliburton County is about to become the new place for upcoming opera stars to get their big break.

A powerhouse couple in the opera world, Metropolitan Opera director Valerie Kuinka and her husband, internationally-acclaimed tenor Richard Margison, are running a three-week workshop for pre-professional opera singers this August as part of the Highlands Summer Festival.

After searching for the best undiscovered singers in the country, the couple chose seven highly-trained artists from Newfoundland, Toronto and even Bancroft. The select few didn't have to think long about the offer.

Bancroft native Adam Bishop was star struck by the opportunity to work with Margison. The twenty-one-year-old Queen's University student had been directly inspired by Margison since watching him perform the starring role in the first opera Bishop attended.

"I couldn't believe I would be able to study with him. I told my friend it's like a painter spending the summer with Picasso," Bishop chipped.

This August will not be the first time the two meet. Bishop first sang in front of his idol after travelling to New York to audition for a spot in the workshop. He said it was nerve-racking to be in the same room as Margison.

"I felt like a nobody actor going to Hollywood to audition in front of Steven Spielberg," he recalls. Though he didn't feel very confident about his performance, not longer after he got word that the last remaining spot in the workshop would go to him.

To make the opportunity even more surreal, the workshop will be entirely free.

Kuinka and her husband felt that it was unfair to ask upcoming singers to fork over money for additional training. She explained that many young singers are already deep in debt from a university degree in operatic performance, followed by more time with the Canadian Opera Company.

These years of intense training bring no guarantees of success. To do the level of networking one needs to break into the business, these aspiring singers often spend thousands more on professional workshops.

"There are so many training programs in Canada that expect these 20-somethings to come up with $2,000 or more," Kuinka says.

With a flood of support from the community, Kuinka and her husband have been able to offset many of the workshop costs. Free use of Haliburton's high school auditorium, donated lunches and open doors for the students to stay are just some of the ways that county residents have welcomed the school.

Valerie Kuinka, a director with the Metropolitan Opera, says she wants to say thanks for the welcome she's always received in the Highlands.

It was this friendliness that inspired Kuinka to create the workshop in the first place. While she had been cottaging in the Highlands since childhood, she bought her cottage on the outskirts of Minden just five years ago. The beautifully landscaped waterfront spot has all the makings of a summer retreat. She enjoyed her stays there so much that it was tough to imagine turning her downtime into a teaching opportunity.

"We were sort of reluctant to bring our work here because it was our sanctuary," she said.

But the county's thriving arts community pulled her in. Seeing a high level of dramatic and visual arts in the Highlands, she began to see a niche for herself.

"We noticed there was this big hole in opera," she said.

Wanting to give back to the community that had made her feel instantly at home at her cottage, she and Margison decided to create the Highlands Opera Studio. The workshop runs under the umbrella of the Highlands Summer Festival, which takes much of the administration pressure of the couple.

The two have been able to focus their attention to bringing in agents from New York City, and teachers from across the county.

With first-rate training also comes first rate entertainment. Area opera fans will get to dip into the opera scene when the group performs two English language productions at the Northern Lights Pavilion in Haliburton. The two comedies – Fair Galatea by Frank von Suppe and The Spanish Hour by Ravel – will give the community a lively introduction to opera.

"I think people will be blown away by the power of the human voice," Kuinka said.

The two one-act comedies will take place August 25, 27, and 29. For an earlier glimpse at the opera singers, there will also be an excerpts concert August 17. All tickets are $25 and can be purchased by calling (705) 457-9933 or emailing tickets@highlandssummerfestival.on.ca.

The public will also get the chance to watch them perfect their songs at master classes taking place at the Minden United Church August 10 and 11. Tickets are $10 and can be bought at the door.

Art auction supports bursaries

by CHRIS KALOUDAS
Special to the Echo

Fleming College's Haliburton School of the Arts will be hosting the Faculty Art Auction this Thursday August 9 at the Delta Pinestone Resort. This free event has been held annually for over 20 consecutive years in an effort to raise bursary and scholarship funds for students of the college's part-time summer courses, Arts Certificate programs, and Visual and Creative Arts Diploma.

Barb Bolin, principal of Fleming's Haliburton campus, is appreciative of the support from the Haliburton faculty. "We are extremely grateful to all of the faculty who have donated spectacular works in support of emerging artists... There truly will be something for everybody," Bolin says of the vast auction collection. Faculty donations include glass works, ceramics, paintings, drawings, blacksmith creations, photography, multi media sculpture, recordings donated by faculty musicians, and gift certificates among other treasures. "The proceeds of this event go directly towards offsetting the tuition costs of students in financial need. It is a way to help make arts education accessible to all who want to explore their creative potential...regardless of financial constraints," says Bolin.

Margot Miller is an artist and instructor at the Haliburton School of the Arts in both the part-time and full-time courses. "It's a fabulous fundraising event that generates money for future students. Everyone has fun and its great exposure for the faculty who donate their work. It also heightens awareness of the kind of work being produced here".

Terry Craig, who teaches glass work and functions as the glass studio technician for the college, also runs the Artech Glass Studio in Tory Hill. He created his donation for the auction from molten glass and manipulated it into a large attractive vessel. "This is an amazing opportunity for people to buy work from some amazing Canadian artists...and in doing so, support both the artists and future artists through scholarships".

Visitors are welcome to view pieces at 5 pm and bidding will commence at 7 pm. A silent auction will also run concurrently and will also feature works by faculty of the Haliburton School of The Arts. There is no reserve bid on any pieces, and the auction is free to attend. For more information on the Faculty Art Auction or the Haliburton School of The Arts call 457-1680 or visit www.haliburtonschoolofthearts.com.

Police support association hopes to start up again

MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Eight years ago, the Haliburton Police Support Association disbanded because there weren't enough members to fulfill its responsibilities.

The volunteer organization has disbanded but the need for its presence in the community has continued.

This year, a few of its former members are hoping they can breath new life into the group. They can't do it alone, however.

If enough people come forward to volunteer, it's hoped the group can be re-activated.

"Any community-minded citizens would be the eyes and ears of the police," says Christine Horton, who is helping to spearhead the effort to re-establish the association.

Whether it's helping the Haliburton Highlands OPP host finger-printing clinics or bike rides for children, or blocking traffic for parades and special events, volunteers can free up the OPP's resources so that those resources can be better used.

> "They're another resource for us ... It's always beneficial to have more eyes and ears out there for us.
> Constable Mark McMaster

Horton says she became aware of the association's value when watching last year's Santa Claus parade. All of a sudden, Pine Street was blocked by the floats. Horton realized that if anyone living along the street needed emergency attention, it would be very difficult to reach them. Someone needed to be there to help ensure that access routes remained open.

"They're another resource for us," says Haliburton Highlands Const. Mark McMaster.

Like Horton, he stresses that the police support association is not intended to help the police in active duty. "It's not hands-on," says McMaster.

Although "it's always beneficial to have more eyes and ears out there for us," volunteers do not do patrols or get involved in police activities.

Horton says that the group needs at least 15 people to be viable. People must be dedicated but the time commitment need not be onerous. Most of the activities would occur sporadically.

If interested, please call her at 457-3795.

Climate change: do our choices matter?

Conference explores the effects of climate change on our lakes and what we can do to help

The connections may not be direct, immediate and scientifically proven, but shoreline property owners looking at recent carp die-offs, tree blow downs, and flooding in the Kawarthas can be forgiven for wondering if global climate change has anything to do with these events. And for wondering what they can do in response.

The seventh annual Lakeland Conference will explore these concerns and options at the Buckhorn Community Centre, Saturday, Aug. 11.

The keynote address by Dr. David Pearson, an earth sciences professor at Laurentian University, will kick off the conference with an overview of "Climate Change and Its Impacts on our Lakes."

An award-winning educator, Dr. Pearson has served as project director at Science North, hosted TV Ontario's "Understanding the Earth " series, and is an invited member of the Osprey Writers Group. His presentation is sure to be lively and thought-provoking.

Organizers have also made a last minute addition to the agenda to address the biggest, late-breaking issue of pressing concern this summer. MNR biologist Dan Taillon will lead a discussion about the carp die off in the Kawartha Lakes.

Other presentations will cover:

• Windstorms and waterfront properties—What should we do? (Arne Mikkelson, Ministry of Natural Resources)

• Ontario's freshwater mussels: A vanishing treasure (Todd Morris, Fisheries and Oceans Canada)

• Invasive species in our lakes and forests: Who are they and what can we do about them? (Francine MacDonald, Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters)

• Going off the grid: A personal experience (David Masters, Lunatic Adventures)

• Ontario's Clean Water Act (Jeff Leal, MPP for Peterborough riding and parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Environment)

• The Docktalk program: How we can all help keep our lakes healthy (Terry Rees, Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Associations)

• Last year's big blow down: How Hydro One restores our power, and a slideshow of aerial photographs of the storms' destruction (Bill Smeaton, Hydro One)

• Lake communities in action: Lake planning panel discussion (led by Randy French, French Planning Services)

Conference goers will also be able to connect with a wide variety of government and not-for-profit exhibitors, and environmental businesses, including: Conservation Ontario, Fisheries and Oceans Canada, Flanigan and Sun, FOCA's Docktalk, Havencraft Strawbale Homes, Hydro One, the MNR's Firesmart Program, Nature Clean Products, Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, Ontario Stewardship, Sun Volts Unlimited, the Turtle Trauma Centre, "We Check It Out" Security Services, Well Aware, and Kawartha Heritage Conservancy.

The conference opens for registration at 8:30 a.m., and runs from 9 to 3:30 p.m. Cost is $25 per person, or $40 per couple. Lunch is included with admission.. For more information contact Mike Gibbs at 745-3238, at lakelandalliance@cogeco.net

Rotary Carnival returns

LHISHA BENNETT

Special to the Echo

The Rotary Carnival kicks off with a parade through downtown Haliburton at 7 p.m. on Friday, August 10.

The Rotary Club of Haliburton is thanking the community for its support by throwing a party this weekend.

The annual Rotary Summer Carnival is back with its car raffle, parade, midway and dazzling fireworks display over Head Lake.

The club is giving away a flashy red Pontiac Solstice at this year's draw at the Highlands Rotary Carnival. Tickets are $20 for one ticket, $50 for three and $100 for seven and can be purchased at Henwood's Variety.

"The car draw is our biggest fundraiser of the year," says Jim Henwood, the chair of the carnival on August 10 and 11. The car draw will take place on Saturday night at 10:30 pm. after the spectacular fireworks display.

Gentlemen start your engines: The carnival will kick off with a parade in downtown Haliburton at 7 p.m. on Friday with the theme of "Race Cars of the Century."

Don't be worried that the race car enthusiast in your family will be the only one entertained at this event, though. There are carnival rides and games in Head Lake Park starting at approximately 12 noon on Friday and Saturday. The Rotary Club is operating a food tent starting at 4 p.m. on both days.

In the parade on Friday you will see the Kawartha Cavaliers, Haliburton Legion Pipe Band, and Haliburton Flute Band perform live music and there is a bike decorating contest for the kids. They get to be part of the parade and the best decorated bike gets a prize.

All funds raised by the Rotary Club throughout the year go to good causes in the community. The Rotary Club of Haliburton sponsors one high school student per year to go abroad for one year. One student per year also comes to Haliburton through the Rotary Exchange program. The Rotary Club also donated money to the food bank to help build their new building and has pledged $75,000 to the new health services campaign. The Rotary Club is responsible for maintaining the train in Head Lake Park and recently rebuilt the dock and public boat launch on Head Lake.

"The best part of organizing the carnival is seeing it all come together and working with the members of the Rotary Club and members of the community to make the carnival happen," says Henwood.

Admission to the carnival is free.

Thank you Haliburton County and enjoy your carnival.

Fun in the sun at Haliburton Lake regatta

- Photos by Greg Hoekstra -

Three-year-old Cade Royer (left) and 4-year-old Jonah Terpstra dash for the finish line during the boys' under-5 water race at the Haliburton Lake regatta this past Saturday. Since the boys were in the youngest age category they were allowed to run along the sandy shoreline, whereas older kids and teenagers swam the course.

While others were busy watching the swimming races (or even partaking in them), 7-year-old Daniel Forrester of Hamilton was happy to just take in the scenery from his spot underneath the warm sand, where older cousin Eliott buried him earlier that day.

With only five minutes left before judging brothers Quinn, 5, and Cole McLauchlan, 8, of Milton hurry to put the final touches on their sandcastle masterpiece.

The County Ho-Down now has a budget. Donna MacDonald (left), executive director of Community Care accepts a $6000 cheque from Royal Bank of Canada Dominion Securities. Investment advisor Beth Tuck (right) says she is excited to support an organization that does so much for the community. On August 11, the money will be put to use at the Grand Ole Opry-style County Ho-Down at the Minden Community Centre featuring singer Johnny Burke.

The good wishes of the community go to Bob English and Melanie Tripp on the occasion of their wedding on Saturday, August 4. Their children Matthew, Ashley, Tiffany and Crystal with Amanda Wells made up the wedding party. Both the smaller wedding and the larger reception were held at the community centre for friends and relatives. All the best to Bob and Melanie.

Kathleen Owens has returned from two weeks in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia visiting friends and relatives there.

Jim and Margaret Milne have returned from a few weeks travel and visiting with their daughter, Susan and her husband Henry Van Ael. Jim and Margaret have brought their grandsons Adam and Arthur home with them for a week or so in West Guilford.

Swimming lessons with Katie Wood have been very well attended in the first two weeks of July, the last week of July, and the first week of August. Pine Lake seems to be the ideal location for these lessons, with parking convenient at the community centre and enough space beside the road on the lake side.

The Andy Sisson Reunion happened once again on the property of Marilyn Gibbon at the head of Pine Lake on Sunday, August 5. Some of the people in attendance were Earle and Louise Sisson, Blaine and Connie Sisson, Spencer and Laurie Sisson and daughter Zoe, Pat and Ron Smyth, the Ken Chumbley families, the Dave Chumbley familes, Kevin and Bev Sisson with sons Adam and Greg, Sean Brice (grandson of Helen Brice), Shane Sisson, and ourselves with grandson Luke Cooper.

Later in the day George Cooper arrived from home with his daughter, Daphne, and two of her girlfriends from New Brunswick. This is the first of our company expected for the celebration on August 18.

What a party!

CAROL STAMP

Special to the Echo

Over 200 people attended a retirement dinner, roast and dance for Bernie Bain on July 28 to honour his thirty years of service as bartender for the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 129.

A delicious buffet was prepared by the Ladies Auxiliary and after dinner many of Bain's friends ventured up to the microphone and proceeded to roast him. Many laughs were enjoyed by all at hiss expense but also many expressed their good wishes for a happy retirement and thanked him for his long service to the branch.

MPP Laurie Scott sent her good wishes and expressed her disappointment at not being able to attend the event.

The evening ended with many local musicians donating their talents for a dance which everyone enjoyed as they danced the night away.

Bernie Bain was given an entertaining send-off when the Haliburton Legion threw him a retirement party. Here he's joined (front row middle) by band members Jeff Barry and Audrey Sedley in the front row and Laurie Perry, Al Blanchard, and Bill Rennie in the back row. (Musicians who also contributed to the evening's success but who are not in the photo are Marilyn Giles, Gord Kidd and Dan Johnson.

Ain't no mountain high enough

Haliburton's Amin and Nadia Shivji prepare to climb Mount Kilimanjaro in the name of charity

GREG HOEKSTRA
Staff Reporter

GREG HOEKSTRA/Echo

Axis Pharmacy President Amin Shivji (right) and his 15-year-old daughter Nadia will climb Mount Kilimanjaro (the highest mountain peak in Africa) this December in an attempt to raise $10,000 for Canadian charitable organization Save the Children. So far the pair have raised roughly $3,500, and they are now turning to the residents and cottagers of Haliburton County to help them in their fundraising efforts. All money raised will help in the fight against HIV/AIDS in Northern Kenya.

Amin Shivji and his 15-year-old daughter Nadia are setting their sights high – 19,000 feet high, to be exact.

This coming December the father and daughter team plans to climb Mount Kilimanjaro, the highest mountain peak in Africa, in an attempt to raise $10,000 for Canadian charitable organization Save the Children.

The effort is part of a larger initiative launched by Axis Pharmacy Inc. – a 32-store chain of independent pharmacies that Shivji is president of. Since forming in 2002, Axis has raised between $60,000 to $80,000 each year for organizations such as the World Partnership Walk, Operation Eyesight, and Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, and this year an organizing committee decided to push the bar even higher by inventing the "Kilimanjaro Challenge."

"The idea is to do more than simply just ask people for money," Shivji says of the challenge. "This will be a challenge for us too... We're trying to do something to show our support in return."

Shivji says the company hopes to raise anywhere between $120,000 and $150,000 for Save the Children, with a team of roughly 30 climbers collecting a minimum of $5,000 apiece. In addition to that, climbers will also pay for their own airfare, at a price of roughly $2,500.

All of the money raised through the trip will go directly to Save the Children, in order to assist in the fight against HIV/AIDS in villages in Northern Kenya. Many Haliburton residents may be familiar with Save the Children, since Axis also partnered with the organization after the 2004 Boxing Day tsunami.

Though neither Amin nor Nadia have ever climbed a mountain before, the two are eager to undertake such a great physical challenge in the name of those less fortunate.

"I thought it would be a really cool opportunity. I think it will be a lot of fun and it's for a great cause," says Nadia. "People who have done it say it's a life-changing experience."

"To be honest, I'm both excited and nervous at the same time. It's almost like the less I know, the better," adds Amin lightheartedly. "But in all seriousness, this is a huge opportunity. And then when you couple that with the fact that it's for a good cause and a good reason, well, I think that's what is pushing me harder than anything else."

> "To be honest, I'm both excited and nervous at the same time. It's almost like the less I know, the better."
> - AMIN SHIVJI

Amin says that, as a family, the Shivjis have always strived to help those in need whenever possible.

"For us, it's just about being able to give back, be it locally or globally," he says. "We feel fortunate to be in the position we are in, so we feel as a family that it's very important to give back. In many ways what we are doing is a very, very small contribution, but at the same time we feel it is an important one."

Even at the young age of 15, Nadia says she too feels an obligation to assist those less fortunate, and in the past she has been successful in doing so. During her Grade 8 year at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School in Haliburton, Nadia – then student president – helped organize a school fundraising effort that eventually generated $1,000 and provided resources for two classrooms in African villages.

"I've been watching the World Vision commercials on TV since I was three, so I guess it's just sort of always been in the back of my mind," she says.

Though the pair will not depart for their trip until December 26, already they have begun training for the climb by walking and hiking more frequently. Due to the high altitude, Amin says it's important for them both to increase their lung capacity and oxygen uptake capacity through aerobic exercise.

In addition to their training efforts, both Amin and Nadia have recently begun their fundraising efforts. So far they have raised roughly $3,500 from business partners, close friends, and family members, and now they are extending their hands to the community at large in hopes that Haliburton County will help them reach their goal.

"[Haliburton] is a small town, but the people are really generous around here," says Nadia.

"Actually, it was the Haliburton location that raised the most money of any Axis pharmacy after the tsunami," adds Amin. "It was a challenge that the people in this community really responded to."

Those wishing to support Amin and Nadia on their journey are being asked to either drop by Haliburton's Axis Village Court Pharmacy (on the corner of Maple and Victoria Streets) to pick up donation forms, or fill out an online donation form at www.axispharmacy.com under the "Kilimanjaro Challenge" section of the site. Donations of any size are welcome, and any donation above $15 will be issued a receipt for tax purposes.

(K)nave Gallery's Jennifer Wanless-Craig, with her daughter Anabelle, is contributing to Tory Hill's emergence as an artistic hub of Highlands East.

Tory Hill revival

Young entrepreneurs turn hamlet into a destination, not just a place to pass through on the way to somewhere else

NEIL JUDSON
Special to The Echo

Driving eastbound from Haliburton along Hwy. 118 will take you to a fork in the road. Most people either turn left to Canada's mineral capital or right to good old Gooderham. Little do they realize that in their haste they passed straight through a small community on the cusp of revival.

Once a bustling village, Tory Hill had become a means to a journey's end in some other place. But a new crop of young people has decided to set up shop in an attempt to reawaken it as an attractive destination for locals and visitors.

Jennifer Wanless-Craig, 30, and Marita Ragheb, 23, work out of two buildings from Tory Hill's early years: the old United Church established in 1928 and the dance hall built in the 1890s. While Wanless-Craig runs a contemporary art gallery, Ragheb looks after a vintage clothing shop in the refurbished building right across the road.

(K)nave Gallery and Dezi's Vintage Clothing are setting a scene that juxtaposes past and present. The gallery offers contemporary art from more than 40 local and non-local artists. The men's and women's clothing store is stocked with vintage and retro styles selected from sorting factories in Toronto.

Wanless-Craig wants to contribute something different to a place that sometimes relies on the area's traditional art subjects.

"The art has to be unique, different, contemporary and well designed," she said. "We've had some people come in and freak out and say 'Thank god there are no loons.'"

The gallery is in an addition to the church, which has been revamped into the home of Wanless-Craig, her husband Terry Craig, and their daughter Anabelle. Terry is a glassblowing technician at the Haliburton School of The Arts, and his work is on display at (K)nave where he runs Artech Glassblowing Studios.

Other local artists on display include potter Lisa Barry (also an instructor at the college), jeweller and sculptor Mary Anne Barkhouse, and painters Victoria Ward, Laurie Jones, and E.G. Blundell.

Blundell was geologist and former head of the Canadian Wildlife Foundation's research department when he decided to shift his geological passion to his art. He now lives with his wife Victoria Ward a few minutes down the road from (K)nave.

"It's a difficult place to run a gallery, t's not only the clothing that's retro at Dezi's. Marita Ragheb has transformed Tory Hill's former dance hall nto a fun place to shop for vintage clothing. Dezi's sn't your typical clothing store but then Tory Hill is not your typical setting for such funky taste in fashion.

but they're able to attract people to Tory Hill who would not otherwise be passing through," he says. "It's turning into a bit of a hub. It's fun there now."

The relationship between Wanless-Craig and Blundell proves that Haliburton does indeed have the artistic community to which it claims. They promote each other, suggesting one another to clients. It's a win-win situation as Blundell is given more space to show his work and Wanless-Craig has nearby access to over 100 pieces.

And then there's Ragheb across the street. Although the two neighbours met just over a month ago, they assist each other's clients and trade goods.

"There needs to be a revival of the community, buying local and supporting each other," says Wanless-Craig.

Together, however, they have a vision for Tory Hill that goes beyond mere commerce.

> "It's turning into a bit of a hub. It's fun there now."

> GARY BLUNDELL

For the upcoming Highlands East Arts and Crafts Tour on August 11 and 12, they are trying to arrange a barbeque and have buskers and vendors set up in order to add extra vivacity to the town. And Wanless-Craig has already played host to groups of artists who wish to create together at a common venue.

They continue to move forward. Ragheb plans to start renting clothing to play-groups and Wanless-Craig is looking into having the college direct a teaching series at the gallery.

(K)nave Gallery is open Friday 11-9, and Saturday/Sunday 11-5, or by appointment. Dezi's Vintage Clothing is open Friday to Sunday 10-5.

This weekend's studio tour is free. For details on participating studios visit www.highlandseastartour.com or pick up brochures throughout Highlands East.

A line of girls aged six and under jumped into the water and raced to the finish.

The 49th annual Kennisis Lake Regatta was held Aug. 4 at the Kennisis Lake Marina and saw about 400 people participate in a number of games and fun times on the water. The day began with a marathon race, followed by more swim races from ages 4-16 and then an afternoon full of fun in the sun with log rolling, bubble gum blowing contests, water balloons and Battlegolf! Above, grandmother Carol Gibbens cheers for granddaughter Sarah Cassidy during the seven and eight year old girls race. Sarah finished in second!

Studio tour displays local talent

What is the difference between an artist and an artisan? To find the answer to that question visit the studios of over 20 artists and artisans spread throughout the beautiful countryside of Highlands East. The Studio Tour will take you through the villages of Irondale, Gooderham, Tory Hill, Wilberforce, Harcourt, Highland Grove, Cardiff and Paudash. The tour exhibits a diverse selection of high quality arts and crafts produced by local artists and artisans. Visit some of the studios, shops or galleries to view a wide variety of original works and meet the talented artists and artisans in their studios as they demonstrate their skills. Studios will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, August ll and Sunday August 12.

The Harcourt community is very pleased to boast four studios this year - Chris Stickland, Painters Retreat, 3837 Loop Road; Clair Loft at 1023 Chester Crescent; Linda Middleton, Crystal Image Studio, 3902 Loop Road in downtown Harcourt; and Willy and Patti Ewaschuk of Cottage Hill Furniture & Cabinets at 4025 Loop Road.

Chris has a fascinating background that has helped inspire him over the years to achieve his present level of expertise. He was born in Derby, England in 1948. His mother Irene was a ballroom dancer and father Peter was a well-known journalist who wrote for the Toronto Star, Life, and Time magazine.

Chris is a passionate artist and craftsman. Over the years he has been involved in approximately 65 different crafts ranging from leatherwork, building miniscule ships in bottles, wood carving to jewelry making. He is an avid painter and enjoys doing watercolour, oil and acrylic. He has a number of his paintings on display in the Toronto Dominion Centre and other prominent places. This is Chris' first year to be part of the Highlands East Tour and we are pleased he is taking part.

Claire has been a very special lady in our community for numerous years and has played a very integral role in founding the Highlands East arts and crafts tour. Claire spends many enjoyable hours painting both in oil and watercolours. Claire first started painting by taking art courses in Timmins as a young girl and finished with a B.A. at Windsor University. Claire enjoyed passing on her love of art by teaching art at the Windsor Scottish Society and at the Harcourt Community Centre. Claire's passion for painting has won her acclaim far and near and over the years she has displayed her work in many juried shows. She loves to paint on site thus capturing many local special wonders to share with all.

With over 25 years experience, Linda's talents are far reaching, covering watercolour and oil painting, designing custom logos, soapstone carving, postcards, newsletters and layouts for magazines. Linda enjoys capturing the beauty of her surroundings on canvas. Her passion for nature at its best is exhibited in her painting of this area's High Falls located in South Algonquin Park. Her work is exhibited in galleries and juried shows in Ontario and can be found in corporate and private collections throughout Eastern Ontario.

Willy is an artisan extraordinaire creating quality handmade furniture, cabinets and unique items. Having worked most of his life working with wood, Willi is very careful and knowledgeable of how elements of wood go together and very appreciative of details that most people would not recognize. He takes pleasure in working with all wood from hardwoods to softwoods and he has developed skills in woodworking that are exciting and rewarding. Willi enjoys working with people offering them creative solutions for their home or cottage.

Don't forget to fill out a ballot at each studio for a chance to win an original piece of art. Every studio will give away a piece of their own work of art; names will be drawn on August 12. Ballots are on the back of HEACT bookmarks, available in the Haliburton and Bancroft areas, and will be on hand at each studio during the tour. For more information visit www.highlandeastertour.com

Next meeting of Brushstrokes will be held on August 21 at the Highland Grove Community Centre between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m..

Hilda Clark

News from Dave Bulford et al: Did you hear that 'Sticky Moose' better known as Mary Barker is being interviewed live in Toronto on Canada AM at 8:40 a.m. on Wednesday, August 8 regarding the 'Geocaching Capital of Canada'? Mary is a fantastic ambassador for Haliburton Highlands tourism and the WGS (Wilberforce Greater Surroundings) especially Wilberforce. Do tune in, turn on and learn about geocaching, the modern treasure hunt. There are hundreds of caches in this area.

Over fifty people attended a session at the LWMC last week on how to geocache. Great fun and a great opportunity to visit the interesting nooks and crannies of our county.

The Wilberforce Agricultural Fair begins Friday, August 10 with the Pony Pull in the evening. Of course all the entries of vegetables, baking, sewing, knitting, flowers, preserves, photography etc will have been in and judged earlier in the day. So much fun on Saturday the 11th. Don't miss the various displays, activities and refreshments on the grounds outside and in the buildings. Top the day off with the roast beef supper in the LWM Centre. Always a good time at this fair - keeping folks in touch with our farming and country roots.

The 5th Annual Esson Lake Jazz Festival takes place on Saturday, August 11 in the evening between 7 and 11 p.m.. The Watsons welcome the Blue Monk Jazz group once again with their great music. All are welcome to enjoy the music, the bonfire and great fellowship. Just follow Geordie's Road off Sunset Cottage Road. Car pooling helps!

A small but dedicated group gathered for refreshing tea on the sunny afternoon of August 1 beside Dark Lake on the Outpost lawn. Several hardy souls even braved the heat for a few rounds of croquet.

The Highlands East Arts and Crafts Studio Tour on Saturday and Sunday, August 11 and 12 will give everyone an opportunity to visit art studios to see artists either at work or available to show & sell their creations. Brochures with maps have been available but if you don't have one, the studios are well marked and once you locate one of them get a brochure there and continue your tour. You will find them in Gooderham, Tory Hill, Irondale, Wilberforce Harcourt etc. Enjoy the arts of the highlands.

There will be a show of the art of the late Gertrude LeRoy Miller at the Red Cross Outpost Museum from August 9 to 16. Mrs. Miller was a gifted artist as well as a nurse and the author of Mustard Plasters and Hand Cars. This small exhibition will show the variety of media she used as well as her love of colour and light in all seasons in her oils. The museum is open 11 to 4 daily.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

KEY POINTERS FOR SELLER

QUESTION: Any advice for sellers during the face-to-face sales process?

ANSWER: Here are a few key points to keep in mind:

Let your real estate agent do all the negotiating.

Look at ALL offers, even if they are low. Your agent is obligated to present all offers.

Do not become angry with a low offer and retaliate with an unreasonable counter-offer. Your goal is to sell the house – not punish the buyer.

Never judge buyers by the car they drive or how they are dressed. Be kind and courteous to all people viewing your home.

If you feel you have to make a counter offer, make the best one possible and remember, there are no guarantees.

WHEN SELLING – the goal is to make the sale, not punish the prospect or get even.

Outpost celebrates 15th anniversary

Only a week until August 15th when the Wilberforce Heritage Guild will celebrate the 15th Anniversary of the Outpost as a Museum with the annual corn/wiener roast Fun begins at 7 p.m. All welcome. Bring a lawn chair and a coffee mug. Anniversary cake too!

Among those attending a memorial gathering to celebrate the life of the late Ernie Hemphill on Saturday, August 4, 2007 were Bill and Margaret Jeske, Elsie Lewis, Alfretta O'Rourke, John and Gerda Goverde and Hilda Clark. Arranged by his family at Cannigton this was a time of sharing many fine memories of Ernie who, with his wife Evelyn, chose to live in Wilberforce for some of their retirement years. They contributed much to life here in the Loop Troupe, the Heritage Guild, the Curling Club, The Volunteer Police Association and of course the Gentlemen of Song. At this informal gathering Ernie's children and grandchildren and friends paid tribute in word and song and with their presence. What a joyful and gentle time of sharing memories of this gentleman who contributed much and touched the lives of so many. Ernie died on June 17, 2007. His spirit lives on.

Obituaries

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Norman Douglas Farr on July 23, 2007 at Sunnybrook Hospital after a long battle with Esophageal Cancer. Born March 3, 1933, he will be sorely missed by his family and friends. His love and commitment to his family will help carry them through this most difficult time. He was an 18 year cottage resident on Percy Lake and prior to that on Lake Haliburton in the 1960's. Dear husband to Donna Farr (nee Maynard), predeceased by first wife Doris Joyce Farr (nee Eagleson), loving father to Beth and Bob Clemson of Houston, Texas and Errol and Judi Farr of Bradford, Ontario. Proud and ever devoted grandfather to Alex-Andrea, Ainsley, Addison, Avery Leigh and Austin Farr, Scott and Jamie Clemson, and step-grandfather to Isabella Roda. Will be missed by step-daughter Sara Maynard and partner Sam Roda and step-son David Maynard and wife Jaime. Acelebration of his life will take place at Metropolitan United Church, 56 Queen St. East, Toronto on Monday, August 13th at 1:00pm; reception to follow at 1 Concorde Place in the High Gate Room, Don Mills, Ontario. Donations can be made to Sunnybrook foundation in memory of Doug Farr (head and neck cancer) and Metropolitan United Church "Music Fund".
